The Allen County Partnership for Water Quality: Here to Serve You

The Allen County Partnership for Water Quality (ACPWQ) is a government initiative created in July of 2002 by the City of Fort Wayne, City of New Haven and Allen County as a “one-stop shop” for residents and media regarding water resource issues. The mission of the ACPWQ is to better educate residents and media of water resource issues and include the public in water quality protection. Every other month in this newsletter, you will find this series of articles, entitled Water Matters, which will detail important water resource issues that affect you and your family. Some topics that will be addressed:

- ◆ Storm Drains Aren't Trash Cans
- ◆ Tap Water vs. Bottled Water
- ◆ Green Landscaping
- ◆ The Underground World of Sewer Systems
- ◆ Stormwater- Where Does the Water Go?
- ◆ Combined Sewer Overflow
- ◆ The Why's & How's of Conserving Water

Look for these articles in upcoming newsletters. If you have specific questions or topics you would like addressed, or have any questions about water resources, please contact Allison Van Zandt, Water Resource Education Specialist for the ACPWQ at 484-5848 ext. 111.
